WAS IT "PLANNED THAT WAY?"

The federal trade commission is probing the cost of living. President Roosevelt suspects that "monopolistic practices and other unwholesome methods of competition" have contributed to higher costs.

Possibly they have. If so, their effect has been in addition to that of administrative policies designed for the specific purpose of boosting prices.

In October, 1933, President Roosevelt chided critics for wanting permanent revaluation of the dollar. "It is," he said, "the government's policy to restore the price level first. . . . When we have restored the price level, we shall seek to establish and maintain a dollar which will not change its purchasing and debt paying power during the succeeding generation."

Presumably, the 14 percent increase in living costs since June, 1933, was "planned that way." Yet, because income hasn't been keeping pace, it is expedient to imply that sinister forces have been at work. In the case of farm relief when "sinister forces," in the form of drought, boosted prices of farm commodities, politicians took the credit for the accident as well as the deed. But the high cost of living, apparently, is to be blamed on the accident of sinful monopolies, with nothing said about dollar devaluation, higher production costs and higher taxes—all new deal deeds.

LET'S SEE THE RECORD

Some Ohioans don't know why their government and the CIO are almost hysterically angry with each other.

The explanation is a promise Gov. Davey made to the CIO when he was running for reelection in 1936.
Whatever he said, the CIO thought he said he never would use troops in strikes. It thought he said the CIO could go unchecked in Ohio. Steel towns, acting on this assumption, were thrown into a turmoil when the CIO closed plants and kept them closed.

When Gov. Davey called out the militia, the CIO was furious and still is. Here's an official sample of its fury from an address by Edward Lamb, CIO counsel for Ohio:

"No more injurious anti-social character has appeared in American labor history than this Judas Iscaariot, Gov. Martin L. Davey. Labor must always be on guard against just such sellouts as that perpetrated by America's No. 1 scab, the present governor of Ohio."

Words like these express a bitter disappointment—so bitter that Ohio should be getting curious about what it was that Gov. Davey promised the CIO in 1936. If that organization's present anger is in proportion to its hope of non-interference in the steel strike, Mr. Davey must have done as pretty a job of selling out the state for the labor vote as has been seen in a long time.

HERE, YOU DO IT

A constitutional amendment calling for a national referendum on the question of ratifying a declaration of war has been proposed in congress. An exception would be made in event of invasion of any part of North America. In that case war would be declared immediately.

This is said to be a guarantee against a war not indorsed by a majority of the people. "I believe," says Sen. LaFollette of Wisconsin, who introduced such a proposal in the senate, "that if the American people are competent to elect congressmen and senators to make such a tremendous decision, they are equally competent to arrive at the decision themselves."

For some reason this doesn't string along. The people are competent to arrive at the decision themselves—under ideal circumstances. But because ideal circumstances are nearly always impossible, representative democracy has been developed, on the theory that a few hundred men can do a better job of making decisions for the nation than millions of people, lacking information and facilities for debate, can do themselves.

Yet, it is proposed that after the question of war has been brought to a climax by the actions of government, congressmen should wash their hands of responsibility in the crisis and hand the decision to the people to make. Perhaps they could handle it as well as congress, but why in the name of all that's sacred in buck passing should they be expected to handle it at all?

THE STARS SAY :

For Saturday, November 27

While employment and dealings with elders or superiors should prosper, judging by the lunar and mutual aspects, there are angles calling for wise, shrewd and careful manipulation of current issues.
There is a menace of subtlety, craft, even trickery, especially in connection with contracts or tacit agreements. With vigilance and the co-operation of wise heads all should thrive.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of fair success in employment and in co-operation with superiors or elders, but beware of intrigue, subtlety and, possibly, downright trickery. Be careful with contracts, writings and secret agreements. And do not spurn advice or support of wiser heads.

A child born on this day may have, perhaps, "an old head on young shoulders", being deep, calculating and shrewd, but having its dreams and longings also.

While having sound business ability, it may yearn for solitude and reverie.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 26—Thoughts while strolling: Our front door bell back home when pulled used to sound in the kitchen like Nino Martini! Leading parlor game thinker-uppers: Neysa McMein and Alexander Woolcott. But I'll still take conversation.
Add the gallop-a-trots: Bernard Sobol.

Most unaffected of professional entertainers: Eddie Peabody, the banjoist. Gertrude Lawrence looks aquiver to go places and do things. Study in austerity: Judge Samuel Seabury. Harlem's fashion plate, Duke Ellington. And is he a dude! Ditto Simms Campbell, the artist.

Title for a magazine piece about the loose-wristed boys who swish about the restaurants—Capons of the Cafes. The Rialto's No. 1 yarn spinner—John Golden.
Kay Brush and her Sealham. And it's about time for her to be turning in another novel. So it is.
Look-alikes: Ruby Keeler and Mrs. George Vanderbilt. Suggestion: Grover Whalen's waxed mustache under glass for one of the world's fair museums. Any magazine piece by Paul Gallico immediately gets my attention. Somehow I expect folks from Gloucester to wear oilskin slickers.

Dean Cornwell in riding pants would make a swell
'Aha, my proud beauty' stage villain of the old days.
Jack Powell, who literally beat his way around the world with a couple of drum sticks. Be fun to walk behind the monocol Jules Bache and Achmed Abdullah and drop watch crystals.

A runner-up for the late William Gillette's train mania is Lucius Beebe, gazetteer from Back Bay and thoroughgoing city slicker. The actor Gillette, as almost everybody knows, had a complete miniature railroad encircling his vast Connecticut acres. Trains have been Beebe's secret hobby since romper days.
Today when he has an afternoon off he goes to Coney to ride the toy choo-choos or take a commutation trip to some near-by Suburbia. Frequently he has entrained to Hollywood just for the ride. Some weeks ago a publisher article him for a book on railroads and locomotives and he spent three weeks prowling the roundhouses, yards and terminals in various parts of the country. As precautionary measure, Harry Staton declares Beebe's bootmaker fashioned a pair of mod-ish gaiters so he could escape if he caught a foot in the switches.

Sport writers are the only scribblers who can guess wrong most the time and not lose face. Particularly have their forecasts been cock-eyed in championship flights. So much so, shrewd Broadway gamblers list the summations and bet the other way. Schmeling was to be a pushover for Joe Louis and Tommy Farr couldn't survive three rounds with the same fighter. Max Baer was hailed as the great invincible champion. So goes a hefty list of wrong 'uns. The sports writers saving grace has been their ability to kid themselves and never offer alibi. Almost everybody warns to those who admit they are wrong. Also, no branch of sports is so susceptible to laws of upset as boxing.

Students of men's style say the most perfectly groomed oldster in America is General John Pershing.
In uniform, business suit or evening dress. He is costumed sedately, but when he appears on the street even those who may not recognize his face would turn to glance at the magnificent figure. His physique is the delight of tailors. Col. Jacob Ruppert is also a fashion plate among the elders. And there's the octogenarian dude, Col. Creighton Webb.

In my occasional peeks at the Brummels this winter, I find little style change from last. Some of the forward stylists are sporting the Noel Coward sleeve, a sort of puff effect around the arm-pits—and pretty terrible if you ask me. Those exaggerations are all right, perhaps, backed by an Olympian smile, but for the run-of-the-mine duffers they are not so Bond street. Plain colored suits, dark gray, blue and brown, seem the mode, relieved by, well, anything goes—loud shirts, ties and handkerchiefs.

From an etiquette column: "Question—In the bath of a strange house where I was a house guest someone innocently started to open the door. I began to scream. What should I have done?"

My answer would be either that or start making soapsuds.

Seek Master Mind of French Royal Conspiracy

Wholesale arrests which climaxed disclosure of a huge espionage ring and attempt to forcefully overthrow the French government and set up a royalist regime headed by the Duke of Guise, pretender to the non-existent throne, were followed by an intensive search for a master mind believed at the head of the daring plot. Raids in all parts of France uncovered caches of military supplies and forged documents calculated to aid in the coup d'etat.

Many were inclined to credit the Count of Paris, the pretender's son, now in exile in Switzerland, as the "brains" behind the plot. Connected with the conspiracy was the mysterious Rightist hooded order known as "Les Cagoulauds" who were accused of attempting the forcible ouster of Premier Camille Chautemps.

Functions of Lower Canal

RECENTLY I told you about the upper part of the alimentary canal, the digestive tract. Today let me tell you more about this important passageway, with particular reference to its lower portion.

This part of the canal, about 28 feet in length, is housed in the abdominal cavity.
It serves to convert the digestible
parts of our foods into fluids; ultimately these are carried by the blood and lymph to all the different parts of the body.

Not only must
we have foods,
but it is essential that they be prepared for the use of the body. Then they are used for fuel and building material by all the minute cells of the human mechanism. What is left after this process is indigestible, and remains in the canal to be excreted as waste material.

Recently a writer referred to the alimentary canal as a factory.
He pointed out that the raw material is taken in at one end and run through this great tubular factory where it is converted into usable food. It is an establishment that is constantly at work, and even while we sleep, it performs its important tasks.

How It Works

Although the factory works all the time, it does not work always at the same rate. Since it takes a day and a half to handle a full meal, it will be seen why the digestive process is continuous and must occasionally be speeded up to take care of all the material we consume.

When the food mass leaves the stomach to pass into the intestine, certain chemicals or "enzymes" are supplied to make the foods absorb-able by the blood and tissues. For example, the pancreas and the liver furnish more than a pint of chemical fluid daily.

In addition to this chemical aid, the coat of the intestine is provided with muscles to promote this passage of the material. By the action of these muscles the intestines act rhythmically, not unlike the movements of a worm. These so-called "peristaltic waves" push the food material along. Contractions of certain muscles churn the food and break it up into small particles.

Absorption Occurs

After the food has passed from the small intestine to the large intestine and has been churned and thoroughly mixed with enzymes and chemicals, absorption of all nutritive substances is possible and actually occurs. When the remaining mass reaches the lowest portion of the intestinal tract, nothing is left but material of no value to the body. Most of the waste material is expelled through the rectum. Some unwanted substances are also passed through the kidneys and expelled with the urine.

Like all other portions of the body, the lower alimentary canal is subject to infections, inflammation and certain diseases. Colitis, constipation and other common disorders are the result of neglect and failure to observe proper care of the alimentary canal. Disorders of this vital part of the body should receive immediate medical care.

Dr. Copeland is glad to answer inquiries from readers who send an addressed, stamped envelope with their questions.
Address all letters to Dr. Copeland, New York City.

OCALA, Fla.—Policemen here told the city council if it was a question of more pay or shorter hours, they would take the shorter hours. They voiced their opinion through City Councilman William Tucker, who asked the council to reduce their hours from 12 hours daily, seven days a week.

Pacific Bridged By Milk Route — Longer, Fastest

(By United Press)
 HONOLULU, Nov.—The colonization of Guam, Midway and Wake islands for the Clipper service between the Pacific coast and China has resulted in the creation of the longest milk route in the world—and also the fastest.
 The route begins at Honolulu and ends at Guam, with Midway and Wake islands as the only other two stops on the route. It is 4,200 miles in length.
 With the erection on the three islands of hotels where Clipper passengers spend the night, and where they are occasionally held up by bad weather, the question of daily provisions of milk, cottage cheese and other dairy products arose. None of the islands contains pasturage that would permit keeping cows for a home supply.
 As a consequence, all shipments are made from here by Clipper service.
 Fresh bottle milk is taken aboard at 6:30 a. m. and flown to Midway, a distance of 1,380 miles for the first delivery. A second leg of 1,260 miles is then flown, including the crossing of the International date line, to Midway for the second delivery and finally a 1,560-mile hop to Guam for the remainder of the bottles and packages.
 The service enables trans-Pacific air passengers to have fresh cream for their morning coffee, cold milk for lunch, and cottage cheese for dinner.
 Despite the wide range of temperatures and shifting elevations from sea level to more than two miles above the surface, the milk needs no special preparation other than pasteurization.

Britain Spurs 'round World Plane Routes With London As Hub

(By United Press)
 LONDON—The greatest flying network in the world is envisioned for Great Britain, perhaps within a few years. Imperial Airways has a mandate from the government to complete a chain of air routes around the globe.
 The plan is for London to be the hub, with air links branching out to all corners of the empire, across Europe and Asia to Australia, over the Atlantic to Montreal, thence to Vancouver and on across the "top of the world" to Hongkong and Singapore.
 Pioneering of the Atlantic route in conjunction with Pan-American Airways is only the first step in an ambitious plan to run the line over the top of the world and on to a junction with the England-Australian service at Singapore. Thus Australia and New Zealand would get their Canadian mail direct by air.
Pacific Bases Lacking
 While Great Britain controls the air bases for the Atlantic service, with the exception of the Portuguese Azores—Bermuda being a key point even for the southern route—America controls the essential Pacific bases, particularly Hawaii. Although they have a working agreement for the Atlantic with Pan-American Airways, the British wish to avoid Honolulu on the Pacific service. So they are now planning to pioneer a route by way of Alaska and the Aleutian chain of islands stretching across the top of the world from the American toward the Asiatic Continent.
 It has been discovered that there is a warm current, something like the Gulf Stream of the At-

Couple Exchange Vows In Thanksgiving Wedding Here

Miss Eva Mae Hoopes, daughter of Mrs. Mary Hoopes Haines of Salem, R. D. 1, became the bride of Crawford Brantingham, son of Mrs. Alice Rohling of Oregon, in a ceremony at 11 a. m. Thursday at the home of the bride.

A canopy in pink and white, banked with palms and ferns, in the living room of the home formed a setting for the wedding. Rev. Amos Henry, pastor of the Damascus Friends church, of which both young people are members, heard the exchange of vows.

Mrs. Lilburn Coffee, sister of the bride, and Leslie Brantingham, Salem, brother of the groom, were attendants. The bride wore a lovely deep red velvet gown trimmed with white lace and carried Token roses. Her sister wore a green velvet gown and a shoulder corsage of yellow pompons and roses. The bride's mother was dressed in black velvet.

Following the ceremony, 24 guests, members of the immediate families and friends, Misses Althea Shreve and Erma Jones of Damascus were entertained at the wedding dinner. Table appointments were in pink and white with a large three-tier wedding cake topped with tiny bride and groom under horseshoe canopy. Tall tapers lighted the table.

FRENCH GUARD STRENGTHENED

Precautionary Move Protects Ministry of Interior In Revolutionary Plot

PARIS, Nov. 26.—The cordon of mobile guards which authorities threw about the ministry of the interior with the unearthing of a gigantic conspiracy against the republic was strengthened today as a "precaution."

Troops were stationed inside the ministry courtyard and all gates to this important government building were barred.

The Surete Nationale, the national police organization through which the People's Front government sought to trace and wreck the labyrinthine ramifications of the revolutionary organization, operates under the interior ministry.

Guards also were maintained on all arteries into the capital. Every passing automobile and truck was stopped for examination of the papers of the operators and occupants.

More than 30 raids were made in provincial cities yesterday but the results of most of them were undisclosed.

Pierre Parent, a Rouen architect arrested yesterday near Rouen, was brought to Paris under guard for inquiry into the source of a large store of arms seized in his luxurious Paris home near the Invalides.

Eugene Deloncle, a 47-year-old engineering consultant described by Surete agents as the founder and head of the "craze"—"le comite secret d' action revolutionnaire"—spent last night in the Surete headquarters, in a crossfire of questions.

He was arrested yesterday and immediately subjected to hours of interrogation on the thwarted conspiracy to overthrow the Republic and make way for a royal dictatorship.

YARDMAN HALTS TRAIN HOLDUP

Uses Fists On Would-Be Bandits After One Man Is Slain

Moon came up under Lorenz' gun and drove a hard right to his jaw, knocking him out.

Tackled By Smith

Dwyer started back toward his fallen companion, but was tackled by Smith, whom he shot.

Moon hit the bandit twice in the face, and his pistol flew out of his hand.

A trainman felled Dwyer with a blackjack, and the passengers closed in on the pair and tied them to seats.

Lorenz and Dwyer were brought here last night from Deming, N. M., bruised and bleeding, their cowboy clothes torn.

They were in New York, they told officers, when they decided to seek the west. In El Paso, they bought horses and cowboy regalia and planned the train holdup.

Near Mt. Smith they drew their guns and forced Conductor W. M. Holloway and brakeman Jim Velsir to the head of the train.

Lorenz proceeded through the cars removing money and valuables from passengers.

Near Machita, N. M., they commanded the conductor to stop the train. It was then Moon opened his attack.

PEACE SOUGHT IN BUS STRIKE

Federal Conciliator Resumes Work; Busses Move Today Under Police Protection

(By Associated Press)
CLEVELAND, Nov. 26.—Greyhound busses moved today in and out of terminals under police protection in several cities today as a federal labor conciliator resumed peace efforts between striking union drivers and officials of eight Greyhound lines operating extensively in 18 states.

John J. Conner, labor department conciliator, who flew here from Washington, said he would meet separately again today with company representatives and officials of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

The brotherhood called the strike yesterday following a breakdown of negotiations over their demands for a closed shop and a mileage wage rate increase.

Conner said he talked with both sides yesterday.
"They are pretty well deadlocked.
I don't know that I'll even attempt a joint meeting," he said.

Meanwhile, company and union officials issued conflicting claims of the strike's effect on bus operations.

Company spokesmen said schedules had been curtailed 10 to 25 per cent. S. R. Harvey, assistant president of the brotherhood, contended that the strike was nearly 100 per cent.

Police convoyed busses in and out of Cleveland, Boston, and other cities, following sporadic outbreaks of violence.

At Syracuse, police reported strikers disabled a Boston-bound bus by damaging the ignition system.
A New York-bound bus was disabled in a similar manner near Brookline, Mass., shortly after its police escort from Boston had turned back.

J. M. Wickman, manager of the Ohio-Pennsylvania region, said operations are proceeding about 70 to 80 per cent. of normal over the whole system and that only regular drivers were making the runs.

Roosevelt. Willkie agreed with the President that utilities should scale

Mrs. Lillian Clinton, 19, separated from her husband for more than two years and sole support of her two children, was cut from the New York relief rolls when someone wrote in that the birth of one-year-old Joan had not been reported. Mrs. Clinton attempted suicide by taking poison, but quick action by police saved her life. She has been reinstated on the relief roll.

'Creeping City' Of Jerome, Ariz., Edges On Toward Court Battle

BY NED RUSSELL
United Press Writer

JEROME, Ariz., Nov. — This
"creeping community" soon may be the center of bitter litigation between two rich copper companies to decide which, if either, is to blame for its steady, inch by inch, slide down the steep hillside on which it perches.

Engineers and surveyors are making tests and inspections of the earth over which the "sliding city" has been moving its 6,000 inhabitants.

The two copper companies reported preparing to fight it out in court to determine which must pay the city of Jerome for its damage are the Phelps-Dodge Corp. and the United Verde Extension Mines Co.

While officials of both companies decline to discuss the impending showdown, Mayor John P.
Connelly of Jerome says the presence of the engineers and surveyors, together with several attorneys, indicates the issue will be taken into court.

Pace Slower in Past Until recently, the "city" that actually walks, had moved only a few inches a year.

Then, in effect, someone "shot the starting gun" and away it went—25 to 27 feet down the steep mountainside in some places. During the few months in which it made its "dash," some 20 business buildings in the heart of the town were damaged heavily.

Buildings occupying a whole square block were ripped from their foundations and left standing as grotesque ghosts of the mysterious journey—grim evidence of Jerome's boast of being America's unique town.

These buildings, along with several score homes, which also "went along with the crowd" were razed as a menace to life.

Main Street Stretched
Main street, however, came out of the eerie violence of nature's strength with something to spare.
It had been stretched to double its former width.

As the strange movement slowed to its present lazy pace, workmen began immediately to strengthen, with buttresses and reinforcements, the few buildings and homes that had managed to "hold their own" against the almost overpowering pace of nature.

The reinforcement work, now under way, is designed to block Mother Nature's next attempt to push the "floating city" down the 1,600-foot Mingus mountain.

Mayor Connelly describes his city thus:
"Jerome is a progressive town, always on the move. Property has been damaged and destroyed, real estate values have suffered, but there has been no human injury or death. And as soon as our re-building program is over, we'll be better off than before—still the unique town in America."

and on one occasion invaded his

MARIHUANA WAR BEGUN IN TEXAS

New Laws Consign Weed
To Category of Illicit Drugs

DALLAS, Tex.—Persons seeking the narcotic kick of marihuana smoking and those hunting profit by raising and selling the weed, familiar as a narcotic in the south-west, now find themselves in the same category with those who use or deal in illicit drugs, such as heroin.

Marihuana, also spelled mariju-ana, is of Spanish origin so far as the word is concerned. The plant, whose leaves are used to make cigarettes, is a member of the hemp family.

While most Northerners have no acquaintance with marihuana, it has been commonly known all over Texas for many years. Many persons have smoked cigarettes made from the weed.

Smokers of the weed are supposed to become mildly insane, afflicted with illusions. Sometimes no effect is observed. In other cases the effect is pronounced, and persons have been known to run aground after drawing in long, deep breaths of marihuana smoke, using cupped hands to draw back into the lungs the expelled smoke. Sometimes the effect is profound sleep.

The marihuana plant has been grown in back yards of Dallas, Fort Worth and other Texas cities, especially in Mexican districts. The demand in recent years has become sufficient for some Mexican growers to manufacture their own ready rolled and branded cigarettes. Until a few months ago there was no federal law against its use.

The law makes no provision for the marihuana that grows wild on Texas ranches. There is another plant, the loco weed, that has a similar effect on livestock. The loco weed grows wild in West Texas, but bears no resemblance to marihuana, and so far no one has discovered a method for man to obtain the wild effect that the loco weed produces on animals.

Minnesota Cuts Work Accidents By 21 Per Cent

(By United Press)
ST. PAUL—The first workmen's compensation rate reductions in several years have been announced by A. W. Smith, supervisor of the division of accident prevention, of the state industrial commission. Reason for the rate reductions, Smith said, was the sharp decrease in industrial accidents over the past four years.

Fatal industrial accidents have been reduced by 21 per cent, he said. The figures are based on statistics employing man-hours of work.

Smith said that while Minnesota's industrial fatalities had been reduced, in the nation at large over the same period there was a 5 per cent increase.

One Phase Down 13-Pct.
On all compensable accidents—those for which time is lost and payments are made to workers—the reduction in the same period was 13 per cent, also calculated on the man-hour of work basis. There was an increase in figures on a national scale for this category also, Smith said.

There were but two reductions in the United States this year given to employers on workmen's compensation rates. Minnesota received an 8 per cent reduction. Only other state so favored was Alabama, Smith said.

Change in the types of industrial accident was observed since 1929, Smith said. In 1929 the largest single cause of accidents was construction work.

Code Being Revised
A major factor in the reduction of construction accidents, Smith said, was the adoption some years ago of a new code which is now being revised and concentration of inspection by the state staff on the larger and more dangerous jobs.

Closer check of industrial plant operations, and the ordering of many new safeguards, also has contributed to reductions in mishaps.

One important phase, he said, was the check on elevators. Prior to 1931, when a new elevator inspection system was installed, there were 11 fatal elevator accidents in Minnesota in 18 months. Now there have been but four in the past two years, Smith said, and nine in the past five years.

Theater Attractions

Marlene Dietrich and Herbert Marshall in "Angel", the Friday and Saturday attraction at the State theater.

"Angel", the latest of Marlene Dietrich starring films, will be seen at the State Friday and Saturday. Herbert Marshall, Melvyn Douglas, Ernest Cossart, Edward Everett Horton, Laura Hope Crews, Herbert Mundin and Ivan Lebedeff are seen in supporting roles.

Unattractive Husband
Herbert Marshall plays the part of an absorbed diplomat, who gives all his time and attention to political problems to the exclusion of his wife, Marlene Dietrich, who resents his lack of attention to her. She finally leaves her home to make a quiet trip to Paris, in search of some adventure to relieve the drabness of her usual life. In Paris she meets Melvyn Douglas; the two fall in love.

They have one evening together, during which Miss Dietrich answers all of Douglas' questions about herself with the statement that he must never know who she is, or see her again. She leaves him and flies back home to her husband, who does not know that she has left home. He is still wrapped up in affairs of state, and she finds it hard to fall back into her old hum drum life while she remembers the Paris episode.

The Men Meet
A strange quirk of fate brings Marshall and Douglas together and makes them friends. Douglas visits Marshall's home, where he is utterly astounded to meet the woman he knew in Paris only as "Angel". In the ensuing crisis, Miss Dietrich runs away from both of them, back to the salon in Paris where she met Douglas. Both pursue her, and she decides finally that her old established love for Marshall is worth more than her new emotion for Douglas.

The work of a fine cast, numbering Ernest Cossart, Edward Everett Horton, Laura Hope Crews, Herbert Mundin and Ivan Lebedeff.

Western at Grand
The Grand's Friday and Saturday film is "Thunder Trail", a Zane Grey western story.

It tells the story of Gilbert Roland and James Craig, two brothers separated in a massacre of their father's wagon train by Charles Bickford. Both of the boys grow

Japan Admits Men Of Wood Duped Their Troops, Planes

(By United Press)
SHANGHAI, Nov.—Gadgets that have been used for centuries almost exclusively to serve the dead were accorded special military significance by Chinese forces in their operations against the Japanese, according to a Nipponese military spokesman.

Wooden soldiers, fake artillery emplacements and papier-mache airplanes were used by the Chinese as a means of attracting Japanese troops to positions where it would do no harm.

As specific examples, the Japanese spokesman said that wooden soldiers were charged by Japanese landing parties at Woosung; Japanese fliers bombed the Kwangtung, Hangchow, airdrome and later discovered to their chagrin that what they thought were real airplanes and hangars on the ground were actually dummies made of papier-mache; and fake gun emplacements drew heavy fire from the Japanese artillery forces in Nankow Pass.

"Pig Cages" Once Used
Such devices are not new in China. The old Chinese classics on military maneuvering reveal many tricks of a similar nature. It was reported, for instance, how a general of his fast-advancing enemies by strewn along the road hundreds of "pig cages," made of bamboo, shaped to the body of that animal.

Another classic story was of the famous "Three Kingdoms" general, Chu-ko Liang, who opened the gates of a walled city which he was defending, without the aid of a single soldier, to the approaching forces while playing a flute on the city tower conveniently within the views of his invaders. The enemy retreated in haste without attacking, believing they were victims of a trap.

Chinese commanders figured that if "pig cages" and a musical instrument could be used as effective instruments of war, especially when fighting defensively, there must be numerous other means which could be employed to serve the same purpose. And they have, according to the Japanese, used wooden soldiers, dummy gun emplacements and papier-mache planes.

Art Is Centuries Old
Carving figures out of wood or stone or building sham structures out of clay and rocks, has been used by the Chinese since time immemorial to represent the living images of their gods and long-dead ancestors. The Chinese temples everywhere are full of life-like figures carved from wood and stone which may well be like those the Japanese landing parties charged in Woosung; and sham structures of rocks and clay are found on all cemetery lots on the mountainsides which can be easily taken for gun emplacements.

As for dummies made of papier-mache, few old-fashioned funeral ceremonies in most parts of the country can proceed without them. The deceased, it is believed, needs furniture for his future home. Or he may have need for a sedan-chair or rickshaw. And, if he was "modern," an automobile or two besides. All these articles, always made of papier-mache, are delivered to him by the "burning exercise" at the end of the ceremony.

Those planes and hangars the Japanese fliers saw and bombed well may have been made in the same manner.

Widow or Not?

Loretta Harynek

Although Loretta Harynek, 15-year-old Chicago high school student, claimed she had been secretly married to Warren Stanley, son of a wealthy Chicago manufacturer, when she testified at the coroner's inquest into his suicide, his mother denied the statement. Stanley shot himself while "temporarily insane," supposedly because his sweetheart falsely informed him that she was an expectant mother.

Going Too Far
ARKANSAS CITY, Kas.—Hunters hereabouts are telling this one: A man engaged to dispose of an ailing horse was joined by two hunters. Talk turned to marksmanship. Then the executioner spied the tag.
"There's one thing I've never shot—a horse," he said, and fired.
Enjoying the hunters' consternation, he added:
"I've never shot a man, either—yet."
He's still wondering what hit him.

Rank First Line Defense As Best In U.S. History

SAN DIEGO, Cal.—The United States today is strong enough to guarantee that the shores of this country will never hear the echo of hostile gunfire, according to a high ranking naval officer attached to the fleet stationed at the largest of all mainland naval bases here.

"The navy now is strongest in American history," said this officer, who refused to allow his name to be used.

He pointed out his statement was based on the belief that, as it is at present constituted, and with the continued replacement of obsolete ships, the navy is well equipped to meet an opposing fleet far at sea and defeat it decisively.

In such a naval battle, this officer believes, the United States fleet would be able to stalemate every movement of any potential invader, and eventually, cripple the enemy "beyond hope of further resistance."

Relies on Huge Bombers
Asked concerning the "normal course of action," if the fleet were suddenly called upon to defend the shores of this country from an enemy, it was stressed that, while the actual tactical operations are a secret, it is a well known fact the navy places much of its dependence upon speedy reconnaissance by giant patrol bombers.

These huge planes, recently assigned to take over all functions of scouting destroyers, would be the first to contact an enemy.

Once contact was established the battleships, heavy and light cruisers, would swing into action, screened by destroyers, and reinforced by submarines and aircraft carriers with their large broods of combat planes.

These combat planes, it is the belief in the navy, would be able to sweep successfully any opposition from the skies and give the American fleet's bombers full sway. The transferring of all destroyers to the battleforce materially strengthened that main-line of defense, officers point out, making it the most powerful in the world today.

Navy's "Vision" Far Flung

It was stressed the transfer of the giant patrol bombers to the scouting force, makes it possible for the navy to establish and chart the course of an enemy long before it would be possible for even the speediest surface craft to discover the presence of a hostile fleet.

Before the end of 1939 the navy will have 176 of the huge, two-motored PBV-class patrol bombers in service—it is these planes, with a cruising range of more than 4,000 miles and a top speed of 150 miles an hour, which the navy classes as the most deadly and efficient aircraft in the world.

In addition the navy has in service three aircraft carriers, the U. S. S. Lexington, U. S. S. Saratoga, U. S. S. Ranger and three more, the U. S. S. Wasp, U. S. S. Enterprise, and U. S. S. Yorktown will be added to the fleet before the end of 1939.

POLICE PROBE 'HIRED' KILLING

Detroit Underworld Figure Slain; Assassins "From Outside"
Are Hunted

(By Associated Press)
DETROIT, Nov. 26—A theory pointing to hired assassins "from the outside" forced police into a wide-flung search today for the Thanksgiving day killers of Harry Millman, underworld figure, but clues were sparse.

Save for the finding of a green hat possibly dropped in flight by one of the two gunmen who poured ten bullets into Millman at a cocktail bar early yesterday, detectives admitted little progress in an investigation centering on rackets.

Cooperation of neighboring cities and New York authorities was sought on a cold trail, while police reasoned that the killers, who fled in an automobile bearing New York license plates reported stolen, may have been "imported" by enemies here of Millman.

"They must have been strangers in the city," Chief of Detectives Henry W. Piel said. "Local gangsters wouldn't have gone about the job in such a bold way."

Two wounded associates of the slain former "Purple Gangster," Harry Gross and Harry (Hymie) Cooper, gave police little aid in the effort to identify the killers.

Gross, who worked in Millman's horse race handbook, remained in critical condition from bullet wounds. Cooper, slightly wounded, was released after having been held as a police prisoner. The condition of Abe Beienky, wounded bystander, was reported critical.

covering from head and face injuries received at 9:25 p. m. Thurs-while walking along the highway near her home.

State patrolmen said the woman was hit by a car driven by Steven Mihalinas of Conway, Pa., who swerved out to avoid hitting the parked car and saw too late that Mrs. Parshall was walking in the road.

FLORIDA PICKED BY CUNNINGHAM

Iron-Man Miler Due In Sarasota Dec. 1 To Begin Training

(By United Press) SARASOTA, Fla.—The pounding strides of Glenn Cunningham iron-man miler, will be limbered up for the indoor season on Florida beaches.

The barrel-chested Kansan, whose time of 4 minutes, 6.8 seconds set in 1934 has never been equalled in America, will come to Sarasota Dec. 1 for a month's rigorous training.

He will be under the supervision of Roland Logan, who trained him at the University of Kansas and at the Los Angeles Olympics.

Logan said, "Swimming is the one exercise that hampers the training of running muscles, and we will take no chances."

Called "Medical Miracle" Logan said that Cunningham deserved more admiration than any other single athlete.

"He's a medical miracle, you know. When he was a small boy, both his legs were badly burned. Doctors said he would never walk well again, much less run."

"But Glenn learned to walk again and then went out for the high school track team. It took him a long time, but at last his scarred legs could outdistance the best of them."

"Now he is physically perfect."

To Appear at Sugar Bowl

Cunningham plans to go to New Orleans for the Sugar Bowl carnival which annually precedes the football game on New Year's Day.

In the East, he expects to renew his long-standing rivalry with

MANDERS KICKS WIN FOR BEARS

Two Field Goals Margin Of Victory For Chicago Pro Team

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—Whenever the Chicago Bears are hard pressed, all they have to do is put their best foot forward.

Their best foot, or perhaps toe is technically more correct, is the property of Big Jack Manders, most competent field goal artist in the National Professional Football league.

His two accurate kicks yesterday were enough to defeat Detroit's hardy Lions and give the Bears a strangle-hold on the circuit's western division title.

In taking a big step toward clinching the right to meet the eastern section titleholders, Chicago whipped Detroit 13 to 6 before 25,000 spectators at Detroit.

Chicago, with games remaining against Cleveland and Chicago's Cardinals, need a tie or win to clinch western section honors. The Bears have won seven games, lost one and tied one.

In the other Thanksgiving day pro game, Brooklyn earned a 13-13 tie with the New York Giants, favorites to win the title in the eastern sector.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Sep Palin of Indianapolis yesterday closed a deal with Harry Short, Columbus, trainer, for the purchase of John E. Kelley's Vesta Hanover, leading two-year old filly of the year, for $6,250.

Dr. H. M. Marshall of Urbana bid in Denny, Walnut Hill yearling, for $1,000 at the Old Glory auction. Marshall also took W. N. Reynolds' two-year old Scoville for $1,700.

PREDICTS GOOD BASEBALL YEAR

1938 Will Be One Of Best Seasons In History, Harridge Says

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—Baseball is ready to take a fresh toe-hold and slam out one of its greatest seasons. William Harridge predicted today.

The American league president, while declining to disclose exact statistics, said that the 1937 American league season showed a "handsome" increase in attendance over 1936 and that all signs point to baseball in general—minor and major circuits—enjoying a bumper season next year.

"The American league," President Harridge said, "showed an increase of better than 1,000,000 in attendance in 1937 over the 1936 (CC) season; attendance mark, and the splendid turnout this past season even with New York making a run-away of the race," indicates that the national game is heading toward a boom era.

"The National Association of Minor Leagues had a great season, and reports from our promotion department say that more high schools and colleges adopted baseball this year than ever before."

Harridge said he considered the 1937 attendance "remarkable" in view of the way New York outdistanced the field.

MONTREAL—Andre Lenglet, 202, France, stopped Al McCoy, 185, Boston, (2).

PHILADELPHIA—Bout between Tommy Cross, 137, Philadelphia, and Mike Piskin, 138, Freehold, N. J., ruled no contest by referee, (10), (14 seconds of last round to go).

Irish and Trojans To Meet Tomorrow

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 26.—The Irish and the Trojans have the major midwest football stage all to themselves tomorrow and may put on one of the greatest shows of the season.

Some 50,000 gridiron fans—the hardy variety who like "just one more"—will be on hand to watch Notre Dame close its season against Southern California. And although both teams have presented staunch defenses throughout most of the season, past performances of these inter-sectional rivals indicate a rousing offensive skirmish.

The series stands six wins for Notre Dame, four for Southern California and the 1936 tie.

Bowlers Compete

DAYTON, Nov. 26.—Bowlers from 17 major cities of the United States primed themselves for three week-ends of competition today as the 19th annual Central States tourney—second largest in the country—moved under way.

"Beauty's A Charm" HARRIET HINSDALE

CHAPTER XII

She noticed that Mr. Preston's skin was very brown and he laughingly told her she would be as tanned as he if she had loafed on the Malibu Beach sands as much as he had.

She must spend lots of time at his cottage there, he added smilingly. "Didn't she think she would like that?"

Then it was that she had thanked him to take such an interest," she said. "You're the kindest man."

He looked at her with a dismay half real, half assumed. "My God, don't say that, dear child. When they call a man good and kind—all hope is lost."

Her grave eyes were still on his. "Hope of what, Mr. Preston?" she asked.

Of course it was impossible that any girl could be as naive as this. He doubted it and yet obviously the thing to do was to play up to be returned her look with one of mere friendliness.

"Oh, nothing," he replied, without even putting out a hand to caress her soft white arm. "What are you going to do with this beauty of yours? You're very lovely, you know."

"Seems powerful queer to me when you say things like that," she smiled shyly. "I feel as though you must be talking about somebody else and not me at all. You see—"

She hesitated.

"Well, until Mr. Ames came to Rosemead and explained about the Beauty Prize and everything, nobody told me I was . . . pretty. Except one person." Her thoughts flew to Clyde. "Pearl always used to say I was too dark. I used to wish my hair was a golden blonde, like hers."

"Whatever you do," Preston exclaimed fervently, "don't change the color of your hair. It's gorgeous—that coppery bronze. The world is too full of synthetic blondes, anyway. And especially Hollywood. Don't let any of those so-called beauty experts talk you into changing your color scheme, my dear. Your type is very rare. Don't spoil it."

"My type?"

"One of your ancestors might have been a Spanish girl with eyes of purple-black velvet, skin as creamy white as jasmine flower petals and hair with the sheen of a golden pheasant's breast. I've seen just such girls many times in Southern France, especially near the Spanish border."

Then she told him of her beautiful great-great—"Oh, I don't remember how many greats"—grandmother. She described the faded old portrait at home in the high-ceilinged drawing room of Rosemead and how as a lonely little girl she had worshipped the beautiful woman whose eyes had always seemed to follow her with especial attention, no matter where she stood to look at the painting.

"I used to talk to her," she added. "I almost believed she answered me."

Neville Preston sat up and folding his muscular brown arms across raised knees regarded Lucy Lee with earnest concentration, unsmiling now.

"Sensitive . . . imaginative . . . candid . . . generous . . . and beautiful," he said softly. "A disastrous combination, my dear. You should be cold . . . calculating. With those qualities, plus beauty, your success would be assured. It's an irresistible combination in a world where beauty is a commodity."

"A commodity?" Lucy Lee echoed inquiringly.

"Something to be bought and sold in the open market," he explained. "But that's just my point. You don't realize the value of what you have, though the rest of us do, only too well. And between us we naturally will cheapen and commercialize it. Don't Ames with his damnable clever ballyhooing. Your avareous stepmother with her itch for money and success. Your well-meaning but weak and futile father—pardon me, my dear, but it's unfortunately the truth—and last but by no means least, myself."

She was smiling a little, puzzled and uncertain. "Of course I know you aren't speaking seriously Mr. Preston."

"But damn it all, I am!" he exploded. "That's the trouble. When I do have a decent human impulse to speak the truth once in a while nobody even listens. I'm trying to give you some good advice even though it goes counter to my own immediate desires. And of course you won't pay any attention."

He leaned nearer, bringing his handsome face close to hers. "Look here. I'm telling you to drop all this beauty contest stuff and the Hollywood contract and go back home. Marry some nice kid near your own age and—"

"You mean Clyde? How did you know about him?" she exclaimed in surprise. "I suppose Pearl told you."

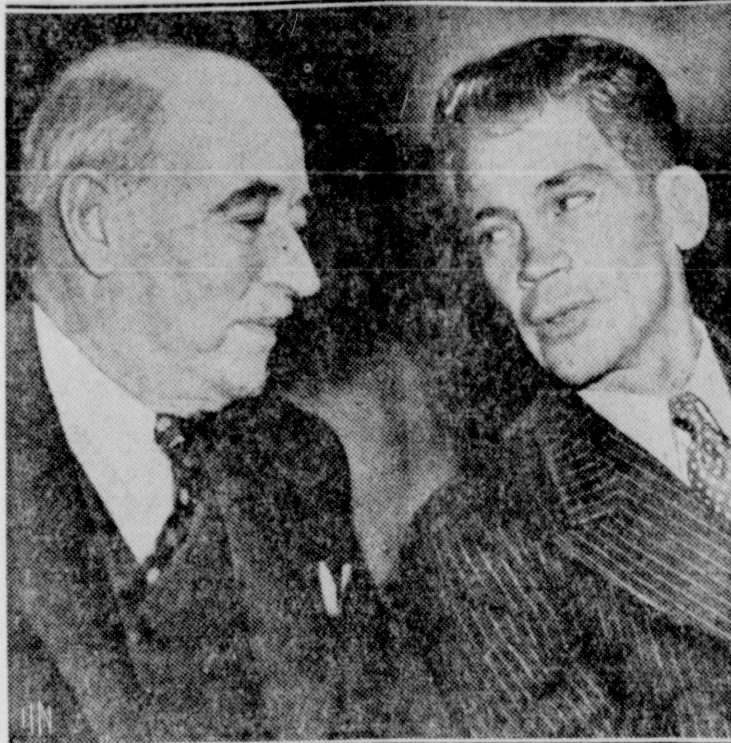

"Pearl has told me nothing. I simply knew there must be some boy down there, waiting to marry you. There couldn't help but be. Well, go back and do it—and some day, when you're older and know what it's all about you'll rise up and call me blessed."

The tide was coming in and the waves, breaking ever higher on the warm sands, were drawing closer to where they sat. The wind had grown cooler and Lucy Lee shivered a little as she stared out over the water. Preston threw a beach coat over her shoulders and his hands moved caressingly as they came in contact with her smooth flesh. But of this she did not appear to be aware, as she continued to keep unseeing eyes upon a distant yacht whose white sails glistened on the far horizon. Finally she turned, shaking her head slowly.

"I can't go back right now," she told him very softly. "I didn't want to leave Rosemead. I cried—'You see, I had never been away from home before. But things aren't the same any more.' She looked like a wistful, puzzled child. 'I don't exactly know why. But they're not.'"

"You've had a taste of it, my dear. That's why."

Economist Attacks Waste

Stuart Chase, noted economist, is pictured with L. C. Sabin (left), of Cleveland, during the session of the House Rivers and Harbors Committee at Washington, in which he told legislators that "wasteful policies of the government in the past have deprived 10,000,000 Americans of a living," taking their "resource base" in land, water and minerals and giving nothing in exchange.

Delicate Surgery Saves Life of Acid Victim

Treating Ernest Slivicki

Death from starvation faced 9-year-old Ernest Slivicki of Minneapolis when he mistakenly swallowed sulphuric acid, thinking it was soda pop, but a delicate operation saved his life. The acid seared his throat passage, closing it up so that he was unable to eat. Surgeons then made an opening through Ernest's stomach, through which they fed him, and then laboriously worked a string up through the stomach and out of his mouth. Each day a larger rubber tube was attached to the string and gently pulled from the stomach through his mouth, enlarging the throat passage.

WINONA

Mrs. Clarence Taylor and Mrs. Lloyd Hardgrove served refreshments to the children of the Primary school Monday celebrating the birthday of their teacher, Miss Lucille Dickinson. Miss Dickinson also received a birthday cake and many nice gifts.

Miss Esther Pim, Gertrude and Beatrice Zeppernick and Katherine Irey were supper guests of Miss Esther L. Brantingham on Nov. 19, honoring her birthday.

Entertains Club

Abbie and Mary Blackburn entertained the Middleton club at their home on the Salem-Winona rd. Tuesday. Guests were from Da-marcus and Salem. A coverdish dinner was served.

Mr. and Mrs. George Megrair attended the wedding of their daughter, Miss Mary Megrair and Carl Kaufeld, both of Cleveland, held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Megrair, Salem, Wednesday.

It is announced that a Discussion group will be organized the evening of Thursday, Dec. 2 at the home of Gilbert Edgerton. Various phases of cooperation will be one of the important topics. These
